The source of chronic disease

Every second western person suffers from chronic disease, every third from digestion problems and every fourth under chronic constipation. But where do these „chronic“ troubles come from? First the word chronic is nice sounding term behind which doctors hide when they do not know how to help you. Second western doctors learn everything about diseases that attack you from the outside, but fairly little about those that have their origin inside of our body. We are often told to accept our sickness or it is said that we are under physical and psychological stress and supposedly aren't sick at all. Regarding digestion disorders it is often falsely said that bacteria or parasites are the cause and that we should take lots of antibiotics. This then leads to a worsening of the situation due to the culling of important intestinal bacteria which help digestion and protect us from disease.

In Chinese traditional medicine it is long known that there are 2 kinds of disease:

1. Sicknesses from the outside
2. Sicknesses from inside of our bodies

In the first category belong all those well-known diseases as bacteria, viruses, parasites and sicknesses as the flu, AIDS, infections, etc. Western medicine has many methods to deal with those.

The second category lists sicknesses as allergies, heart attacks, diabetes, high blood pressure, constipation, bad digestion, overweight, diarrhea, atherosclerosis, osteoporosis, etc. It is well-known that wrong nutrition, daily life pollutants in food, air and water as well as the natural digestion process create poisons which stay in our bodies. These poisons then create diseases of the second category.

Because western medicine is very advanced about outer diseases, chronic sicknesses almost always have their origin in lack of nutrition, exercise and cleansing of the body.

The effect of Zhang-Dong Tea

Zhang-Dong Cleansing Herbal Tea is a functional food, which helps people to have a stool-softening action and smooth bowel movement. It cleans the body of metabolic wastes and poisons which can not be excreted naturally. It is made of natural herbs and is low calorie, caffeine free (without artificial flavoring, preservatives, or artificial colouring) and it tastes good! When combined with daily regular exercise and drinking a good amount of active calcium water everyday, Zhang-Dong Tea helps people feel great about getting and staying in shape naturally. People do not need any diet program when they drink Zhang-Dong Cleansing Herbal Tea. This is due to its strengthening of the metabolism. Minerals are taken in and fat is used up at a higher rate. Not only can Zhang-Dong Cleansing Herbal Tea help people to prevent disease, but it can also assist recovery from chronic diseases, such as rheumatism, diabetes, heart diseases including hypertension, constipation, renal disease, piles, insomnia, acne, forgetfulness, etc. These chronic diseases basically result from injurious waste of metabolism.

In Asia the process of cleaning the body by the use of special herbs and with it the healing of chronic sicknesses as mentioned above are known since centuries. These recipes were often treasured like diamonds amongst high ranking doctors.

Recently some of this knowledge found its way to the west, but sadly the implied methods to clean the body are not very effective and often even damage the intestines.

The right method to clean the human metabolism is by giving a subtle message to our body which tells it to clean itself. This can be done by certain herbal formulas. The knowledge of these herbs and their preparation is a closely guarded secret until today. The Zhang-Dong Cleansing Tea contains a combination of carefully prepared herbs, which has been proven to be especially effective and which in old times was only known to the high kings of china.
